the end of the war and the atomic bombings

International Human Resources Development Project “Assembling Peace through Dialogue”

This session will present the reports of the International Human Resource Development Project, developed in collaboration with the British American Security Information Council (BASIC). It brings together the outcomes of eight months of dialogue and research involving nine young professionals from abroad and seven young participants from Nagasaki, focusing on three core themes: emerging technologies and nuclear weapons, transmission of the memories and role of Nagasaki, and climate change and nuclear weapons.
